

TWO MEN ARE SHOT DURING HOLD-UP AT COCKFIGHT

Bandits Fire on Victims at Greenwich and Escape in Auto.

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 25.—A town "clean-up" is promised by the Greenwich police tonight as the result of the robbing of a cockfight crowd in a barn on the Purdy Lyon estate and the shooting of two spectators early yesterday, by five men who escaped in an auto and sped toward New York.

It has been learned by the local police that cockfighters who have been made unwelcome on Long Island recently, came to Connecticut for the meeting which started late Saturday night. The principal event was to be a battle between birds representing Bronxville and Mount Vernon. Most of the spectators, police say, were business men who commute between their suburban homes and New York. Six already have been arrested and released on bail.

Bets were just being settled on the first fight of the evening when five armed men pushed through the crowd and ordered "Hands up!" The spectators obeyed, forming a line along the side of the barn.

While his comrades watched with raised weapons, one of the robbers started to go through the pockets of the victims. Watches, rings, small change and bills were whisked from the pockets of their owners to the pockets of the collector. He was making good progress down the line and had accumulated more than $100 in money and twice that in jewelry, when one of the crowd tried to knock down the single electric bulb that lighted the place, when the robbers emptied their revolvers into the crowd, turned and fled.

TWO MEN, ONE A FIRE CAPTAIN, WOUNDED.

James Pugnaire, proprietor of a roadhouse near Byram Bridge, on the Boston Post Road, was shot through the breast, the bullets passing out through his back. Capt. John Welch of the Yonkers fire department fell to the ground, struck in the back, between spine and shoulder blade.

With a start of several yards, the five robbers had reached their automobile before their pursuers burst out of the barn. Away it sped toward New York. Some of the cockfight spectators ran for their own cars.

But not a machine started when the driver attempted to pursue the disappearing five. The robbers turned and fired, and Welch and Pugnaire came home empty-handed. They discovered that every machine had been put out of commission before the five men entered the barn.

The two wounded men were found by the Greenwich police. Pugnaire was taken to the Greenwich Hospital in a dangerous condition.

Capt. Welch was sent to St. Joseph's Hospital in Yonkers. There to-day it was said his condition was bad, but he was expected to recover.

Friends of Capt. Welch and Pugnaire came to the hospital to see the men. They did not understand why he was at the fight, unless it was as an amateur detective, for he has been known for years as an anti-robbery crusader.

Last evening Chief Talbot announced that William ("Buck") Fleming, formerly a star ball player, who lives at the Purdy Lyon estate, had been released in $500 bail. The Chief will press charges against him as the manager of the cock fight. Five other men were also held in $250 bail.

GRAVES, GLUE OR FIGHT? YONKERS CHOOSES LATTER

Plan to Establish Cemetery or Factory Near Nepperhan Heights Brings Vigorous Opposition.

Nepperhan Heights, Yonkers, the section largely occupied by residences of New York business men, is offered a dilemma with three horns. It may have a cemetery or a factory, possibly for the manufacture of glue, or it can fight. Former Congressman Woodrow W. Oakley prohibited the trouble when he recently decided to devote forty-one acres fronting on the Tugachan Road to cemetery purposes. Vigorous opposition developed, so the former Congressman decided to go over the heads of the local authorities, and prepared a bill for the legislature. They will hold to contain a provision that all the occupied plots in this cemetery shall be taxable, a proposition which other cemetery organizations fear may be an opening wedge for the taxation of all lots held in cemeteries. Therefore, the Nepperhan Heights residents count on the aid of cemetery corporations throughout the State in defeating the measure if it ever gets into the Legislature.

At a meeting Saturday evening Mr. Oakley told his opponents that if they would withdraw their objections, he would create the largest little cemetery ever seen. Also he promised to let the residents of the section name a majority of the Board of Directors. He is said to have hinted that if the cemetery plan fails through he may be compelled to sell the property to a glue manufacturing corporation.

A committee has been appointed to fight both plans.
